Arizona Public Universities Collaborate on Statewide Tour to Help Families Navigate Admissions and Financial Aid Processes

Arizona's three public universities are collaborating to provide parents and students with sessions across the state that equip participants with tools and resources necessary to navigate college. The Tri-University Tour stops at locations across the state and covers navigating the college admissions process, scholarships and financial aid, and information about each university.

To encourage various communities in Arizona in the college admission process, Arizona State University, Northern Arizona University and the University of Arizona developed the Tri-University Tour. Representatives from each university will host a combined in-depth program where participants will leave with a better understanding of Arizona's public universities – giving parents and students the resources necessary to make informed decisions about their future.

WHAT: The Tri-University Tour

WHO: Arizona State University, Northern Arizona University and the University of Arizona
